

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A transmitter includes a coupler (318) to measure output power. The output power is compared to a set value and a threshold. If the power is above the threshold, the gain of an output amplifier (316) is adjusted toward the set value. If 5 the power is below the threshold, an extrapolation of the linear portion is used to obtain the set power level.